shortage cannot be considered over. The Tytam system, it is true, is overflowing, but before the Jubilce Reservoir reaches that comfortable position, it can take an additional inflow sufficient to provide the entire Colony for between thirty and reservoirs were full to overflowing. What we cannot so readily follow is an attitude indicating that even when fresh water is pouring over the dams and speeding to waste in the sea, Government has no intention of providing a 24-hour supply.

We would prefer a little consistency. The argument apparently mainly resta on the fact that in periods of high consumption, there is a strain on the efficiency of the filter-beds. Additionally, it is disclosed that on hot days in summer, the amount consumed in a single day may jump to 42 million gallons. A "host" of other reasons to boost the Water Authority's morale were not supplied for the layman's assessment as being too technical. We are open to correction, but does the case for curtailment hold together? The pressure on capacity to supply comes always at the height of the day when a full service is sustained, not during the night from 11 p.m. to 6 n.m. Moreover, we vividly recall the official objections to our suggestion in May that the householder would much prefer a break in supply in the middle of the day provided the waterworks were willing to extend the evening hours from 8.20 p.m. to 10 just over a year ago by the National Federation of Women's institutes, and more than 1,200 wives of farmers and farm workers have already affended courses in the spacious old mansion set in the heart of some of England's loveliest countryside, about 70 miles from London.

The aims of the College are simple-to open new vistas to countrywomen and set their brains working along new lines of thought and so enable them to contribute fully to the educational tradition of the countryside. Because countrywomen can leave farm or family for long, courses are short, usually about four days.

In this time it is, of course, impossible to give detailed instruction, but it is sufficient time, sny the College authorities, to start an alert mind working-a mind which will continue under its own energy if given that initial impetus.

J. G. Dewes and D. S. Sheppard, the Cambridge University opening pair, today put on 349 runs against Sussex before being parted, beating their own and the University's previous highest opening wicket stand of 343, which was made against the West Indies last month. Dewes' 212, his highest score in first-class cricket, was made in six hours, with 22 fours. Sheppard got 158, including 15 fours, in five hours and 10 minutes. A great display of fast bowling by Tom Pritchard in Worcester's first Innings helped the County Championship leaders, Warwickshire, to an innings Pritchard moved the ball sharply into the batsmen off the pitch and collected eight wickets for 20 runs in 14.5 overs, six of which were maidens.

LEAGUE

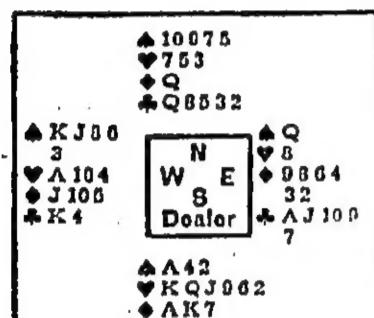

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY COUNTING your tricks is as important in defence as it is for the declarer. Another and more difficult point in defence is to learn to read the declarer's holding from what he does or does not do. Careful observation and clever defence defeated declarer's apparently good contract on today's hand.

West's king of clubs was allowed to win the first trick, and he continued with the four of clubs, which South ruffed with the deuce of hearts. Declarer then led a small diamond to dummy's queen and returned a heart, playing the jack from his own hand.

West won the trick with the nce of hearts, and decided that his best play was to lead a small heart back. Declarer won this with the nine-spot and cashed the ace and king of diamonds, discarding two of dummy's spades.

Now declarer attempted to make a clever safety play. He led the deuce of sparies. The rule, of course, is "second hand low"-but West was a good defensive player and he started to analyse declarer's holding from what he had done and had not done.

He remembered that when declarer was in the dummy with the queen of diamonds, he for you just now, had not attempted to take the not hold the ace and queen of beginning. Stick to routine for spade finesse; therefore he did spades. West also knew that South held no more diamonds; otherwise he would have attempted to ruff his losing diamond with dummy's last heart.

Therefore, if South held six hearts originally, he must still hold in his hand at this point the ace and one spade. This would leave East with the singleton queen. If West played low on the deuce of spades, East would win the trick with the queen. He would have nothing but a club or a diamond to return.

West therefore played the king of spades on the deuce and returned a trump, South had to concede a spade trick for the loss of his contract.

FOR

Washington, June 19. The House of Representatives today passed legislation to keep the American Government in the synthetic rubber business for two more years.

The bill now goes to Prosident Truman for signature. Last month the House of Ropresentatives voted for another three years for the rubber programme, but agreed, on the Senate's insistence, to a twoyear programme.

The purpose of the bill is to keep in operation or a stand-by condition the synthetic rubber plants built during the war to help offset a shortage in supplies of natural rubber. The plants, representing a Government investment of $700,000,000, can produce 900,-1 000 tons of rubber annually.

America May Change Stand On Formosa

New York, June 19. The New York Times said today the United States' political and military policies in the Orient are inextricably linked, and therefore the current "military talks" among top United States officials in Tokyo must go beyond mere discussion of defence bases.

The editorial pointed out that if the United States were to protect Japan against the Soviet threat, "retention of some sort of bases for defending Japan is imperative." But it added that "three or four relatively isolated bases" would be impractical, and the whole Pacific defence system would be impaired.

It concluded: "A vigorous

Russia Building Strong Bases Baltic Area

London, June 19. Russia is speeding up repairs to war-damaged ports in the Baltic and is strengthening her naval bases along the entire 1,100-mile-long coastline, naval experts said today.

Chains of well over a dozen powerful bases, stretching from the Gulf of Finland almost to the vicinity of Kiel, are said to have been made serviceable again. A similar number of secondary bases are being developed in Polish territory and in occupied Germany along the Baltic coast, according to reports.
